

Risk disclaimer

Trading and investing in the Foreign Exchange Market or any other similar financial market is not intended for everyone. It is extremely difficult to become successful and generate financial profit by investing in these markets, there is a reason over 90% of traders fail.

The Foreign Exchange Market in particular carries extreme levels of risk because of its margin/leverage and speculative oriented foundation.

Trading with margin and leverage offers great potential rewards at the unfortunate cost of exceptionally high risks compared to other financial markets.

With very minor changes in price rates as well as during high traffic periods you can lose your initial deposit and more within less than a second.

You NEED to be very well educated, aware of and more so understand all of the risks that are involved with trading before you ever should consider depositing any amount of money into a trading account and start opening live trading position(s).

All actions that you take need to be well considered and analysed, this includes but is not only limited to you opening live trading positions. When learning about trading in the Foreign Exchange Market you should also carefully consider and analyse the accuracy of any and all educational information and content. Yes, this also accounts for www.awalago.com,

NEVER INVEST ANY AMOUNT OF MONEY WHICH YOU CAN NOT AFFORD TO LOSE

Speculative trading carries a lot of high risk factors from various other direct and indirect sources too, including but not limited to: Poor password and account management, scams, frauds, poor electrical equipment, loss of connection, bad network connectivity, brokerages (especially if non regulatory), hackers and many more of these variables.

Awalago is never to be held liable or responsible for any losses and damages that are caused by these factors, neither will Awalago be liable or responsible by damages or losses caused from inability to access www.awalago.com at any time.

There are many brokerages which are non regulatory and yield absolutely no safety for your deposits, profits and general digital safety. Make sure to apply very extensive research before registering with a particular broker. You NEED to be careful and aware of all risks involved with both regulatory and non regulatory brokerages.

Never give ANYONE or any THIRD PARTY access to your personal trading accounts and profiles. By lending out your account details and access you are risking the very high probability of them making poor financial decisions.

Awalago is not liable or responsible for any losses made, including loss off initial investment/profit but not limited to solely financial damage. Trading can inflict much more harm than just in a financial sense. Losing trades and money, having recurring setbacks, making mistakes in analysis or even a simple miss-click can cause a bad mental state or in some cases depression for you as a trader. There are many more variables that should be taken into account when it comes to ensuring your own well being. We strictly advise that you do not actively participate in the Foreign Exchange Market when in a destructive/depressive mood or under the influence of any substance, including but not limited to alcohol and drugs. You and only you are responsible for your physical and mental well being. Taking a break from trading every now and then is generally never a bad idea. All traders have a very different level of mental strength, a lot of mistakes are caused by sudden panic when the market turns against you. This panic may result in a lot of bad decisions taken, including but not limited to taking out all of your money invested with a significant loss to not risk losing more.

You are at all times responsible for making well considered decisions. You are also responsible for the analysis and interpretation of a chart, theory, pattern, price, indicator, comment, or anything else relating to future price predictions. You need to at all times be aware of the risks involved. The Foreign Exchange Market revolves around speculative investing, in no way can any guarantees ever be linked to chart patterns, indicators, financial instruments, opinions, signals, theories and any other assisting systems or variables.

Any and all recommendations, comments, opinions and implications mentioned on www.awalago.com should always be taken into careful consideration and are never to be seen as financial advice and hold no guarantees for any success or potential profit.
